Why Every Closet & Storage Pro Should Belong

Three organizations, one connected industry — the professionals who join grow faster.

Going it alone is the most expensive way to run a closet, storage, or woodworking business. The owners who stay competitive are the ones who stay connected — learning from peers, earning credentials, and keeping a finger on where the market is headed. After 38+ years in this industry, I've never seen a serious professional regret joining. Together, Woodworking Network's Closets & Organized Storage community, The Closet Institute, and the ACSP put education, certification, and a national network within reach for less than a dollar a day.

WHY MEMBERSHIP MATTERS

Six reasons the best pros belong

- 1 Education & Training
Never stop learning
On-demand courses, webinars, and Closet University sessions on sales, design, production, and operations.
- 3 Networking
You're not alone
Private communities like ACSP's Circle and the Closet Institute's peer groups mean answers and referrals are a message away.
- 5 Business Resources
Tools that save time
Ready-made forms, vendor guides, legal aid, and best-practice processes you'd otherwise build from scratch.

- 2 Certifications
Prove your expertise
Earn Registered, Certified, and Master Storage Designer credentials that show clients you're the real deal.
- 4 Industry Events
Meet face to face
The Closet Summit and Closets Conference & Expo bring the whole industry together for tours, demos, and deals.
- 6 Marketing & Leads
Grow your pipeline
Lead generation, member locators, and grassroots marketing help turn your membership into new business.
